OPEN DEER SEASON IS ADVOCATED BY HUNTERS

Believed No More Deer Would Be Killed Annually and That Many Lives Would Be Saved—At Present All Hunting Is Done at Once and Danger of Accident Is Increased.

Speaking of the shortcomings of the present deer laws, several Marquette sportsmen expressed themselves yesterday as of the opinion that the annual loss of life would be greatly reduced and that no more deer would be killed, if there were an open season all the year around, says the Marquette Mining Journal. That the present laws have not worked to increase the number of deer in the upper peninsula and that the short season, bringing a horde of hunters into the woods at once, is taking an immense toll in human lives each year is evident to all who have made anything like a careful study of the situation.

"Years ago when it was legal to kill deer at any time of the year, it seems to me that fewer of the animals were slaughtered than now," said a prominent Marquette man yesterday. "I can remember when comparatively few local hunters went after deer more than one or two days in the year at the most, and when lower peninsula hunters in this locality were practically unknown. There wasn't any talk about deer being scarce in those days either and it was rarely indeed that a hunter was shot by another."

Principle Is Wrong.

"It strikes me that the principle of restricting the slaughter of deer to a few days each year is a mistake. Granting that the shooting could be restricted to that season, it strikes me that as many if not more sportsmen go into the woods during that season than would the whole year round, if there were no restrictions. The time of the deer season is advertised all over the country, the railroads offer special rates to the upper peninsula and the result is that there are between 2,000 and 5,000 hunters north of the straits at the present time, in addition to the resident hunters. What chance do the deer have, with a camp of men every few miles in all parts of the woods, one hunter chasing them right into the rifle range of another?"

"It is a good deal the same as an invitation to a big party. It takes place on a certain night and we know that if we do not go then there will be no party to go to. The result is that everybody goes and there is an immense crowd. On the other hand, if people knew they could go to that party any night in the year, many would put it off from one night to another, would take little interest in the affair, and perhaps would fail to go at all. That is exactly the way it was with deer hunting a few years ago. Hundreds of men are now going into the woods during the deer season that never thought of hunting deer, when they could be hunted any time and venison could be had in the butcher shops almost any day."

Fewer Non-Resident Hunters.

"Were there an open season, comparatively few non-resident hunters would come here to hunt, as there would be no particular time to come and the fact that there were deer here would not be advertised. Most of the deer killed would be killed by resident hunters and farmers, who hunted because they wanted meat, not merely for the so-called sport of killing. As it is now, there are probably as many deer killed out of season as in season, some by farmers and woodsmen who think it their right to kill what they please on their own property (and there is some justice in that argument), others by persons who have no regard for sportsmanship or laws."

"That shortening the season will not help matters any has been demonstrated in Vermont this year, where approximately 5,000 deer were killed in a season of six days, nearly as many as are killed in the entire upper peninsula in twenty days."

"But the greatest objection of all to the present closed season law is the number of human lives that are sacrificed to the sport every year. We had a great deal better have no deer here at all, than to have so many persons shot as this season. In my opinion, one man's life is worth more than all the deer in northern Michigan. With an open season there would be very few accidents, as what few hunters there were in the woods at any

BOUNTIES PAID FOR KILLING OF TWO LYNX AND A WOLF

The county clerk's office was called upon yesterday to pay bounties for the killing of two lynx and a wolf, the first that have been presented for some time. It is so seldom that a lynx is brought in for a bounty that the staff in the clerk's office were in some doubt as to whether they were lynx or wildcats.

One of the lynx was killed at Chassell by Edward Hallapa, and he received the five dollar reward after the animals ears had been cut off as evidence. Thomas Hazel of Laird township was the recipient of the other bounties, five dollars for the lynx and twenty-five for the wolf. The latter was a very handsome animal, and it was not mutilated beyond the punching of holes in the head to prevent its being presented for a bounty a second time.

WILL REMODEL BOAT.

The White City company has begun laying up the steamer International at Carroll's dock preparatory to remodeling her extensively this winter. The steamer is to be made into a modern and comfortable excursion boat. A new ladies' cabin is to be built on what is now the promenade deck and the pilot house and a new Texas will be built above this cabin. A new electric light plant is to be installed and the upper and lower cabins will be handsomely decorated and furnished. The company has decided not to change the name of the steamer.

HOUGHTON VS. MARINETTE.

U. P. Champions Will Meet Champions of Wisconsin Tomorrow.

A football game has been arranged between the Houghton high school team, champions of the upper peninsula, and the Marinette, Wis., high school team, champions of Wisconsin. It will be played at Marinette Thanksgiving afternoon and the Houghton team will leave this afternoon for Marinette.

The Houghton boys practiced yesterday afternoon, the first practice for a week and the last before the game. They will be handicapped by the lack of practice.

The following will go down to Marinette: Cochran, Kindsheid, Warming, Alt, Sullivan, Rogers, Haug, Penberthy, Edwards, McCurdy, Anderson; Coach Taggart and Manager Blais.

Efforts by Houghton to arrange a game with the Ann Arbor highs, the champions of lower Michigan, were fruitless because of the expense. Menominee, whom Houghton defeated, succeeded, however, in arranging a contest with Ann Arbor and this game also will be played tomorrow. If Menominee wins Houghton will be the state champions, but if Menominee loses it will remain a question whether Ann Arbor is a stronger team than Houghton.

VERDICT FOR RIEL.

Jury Awards Him $1,500 Damages—Other Circuit Court Matters.

The jury in the Riel-Gauthier case, in which Riel sued Gauthier for the alienation of his wife's affections, brought in a verdict last night in circuit court in favor of Riel, awarding him $1,500 damages.

Following the Riel-Gauthier case the case of A. G. Dandero of San Francisco vs. E. Brugnoll of Houghton was taken up. The plaintiff is a San Francisco wine merchant and he is suing for the value of a car load of wine which he sold Brugnoll and which the latter claims was impure or spoiled. The amount involved is $1,048.

Judge Streeter states that the request of Attorney Newnam and Clay of Grand Rapids presented to him by Attorney John G. Stone on Monday, in the matter of a probable application by George E. Hamilton for a new trial, would be given consideration on Friday.

The request is that the judge shall issue an order furnishing Hamilton's attorneys with a copy of the testimony in the trial in which he was convicted of assault with intent to murder Sheriff August Beck. The attorneys need the testimony as a basis for an appeal for a new trial for Hamilton.

one time would be widely scattered, and at the same time the deer would have a much better chance for life, for they could make a getaway without running right into some other hunter."

ENTERTAINMENTS IN THE STAR LECTURE COURSE

A large number of Houghton people, including many local lovers of music, were present at the entertainment given by the Farland-Newhall quartet of vocalists, musicians and bell ringers at the Korredge theatre last evening. The program was replete with features of a unique and striking nature and each member of the quartet showed the fullest mastery of the manipulation of their various instruments of music. There was a large attendance, and appreciation was evidenced by the frequent applause and encores.

On Friday evening next, November 26, another entertainment in the Star Entertainment course of the Grace M. E. church will be given at the Korredge theatre. It will consist of a recital by Thomas C. Trueblood, professor of oratory in the University of Michigan, on "Ingomar, the Barbarian." As a reader and lecturer he is known throughout the west. His readings are taken from the best literature with special attention to Shakespearean work.

Prof. Trueblood is a native of southern Indiana. He received his master's degree from Earlham College, Richmond, Ind., and his special training in education chiefly under Professors Hamill and Murdoch. With Professor Robert L. Fulton he established a school of oratory in Kansas City in 1879. In 1892 this school was discontinued that its founders might accept professorships in the Ohio Wesleyan University and the University of Michigan.

Since his appointment at Ann Arbor, Professor Trueblood has been untiring in his efforts to advance the interests of oratory and debating in that university, and throughout the northwest. It was through his influence that the "Northern Oratorical League" was formed, an association of seven of the leading institutions of the middle west, and later the "Central Debating League" composed of four of the largest western universities. He also presided at the organization of Delta Sigma Rho, a national honor society for intercollegiate debaters and orators. It is due to his zeal in organization, his success in arousing interest in the contests, and his skill in drilling the representatives of the University of Michigan that that institution has taken first rank among the large universities of America in competitive contests.

Professor Trueblood is joint editor, with Prof. Fulton, of "Practical Eloquence," "Essentials of Public Speaking," "Choice Readings," "Patriotic Eloquence," and "Standard Selections," text-books used extensively in high schools, colleges and schools of oratory.

He was one of the organizers of the National Speech Arts Association, was twice elected to the presidency of the association, and has been a member of the board of directors since its organization.

MAY ENLARGE THE COPPER COUNTRY HOCKEY LEAGUE

Duluth Paper Says That A. E. Kuehn, While on Visit of Inspection to Houghton and Calumet Rinks, Talked Over Proposition of Adding Duluth and Superior to Circuit.

A. E. Kuehn returned yesterday from a visit to Calumet and Houghton, Mich., where he inspected the ice rinks and talked over the proposition of enlarging the copper country hockey league of four clubs by the addition of Duluth and Superior, says the Duluth News-Tribune.

The copper country rink managers and hockey enthusiasts were very favorably inclined toward the project and thought that it would be successful financially and in the increased interest that would be aroused by the entry of two teams from the head of the lakes. The copper country league has organized for the winter but the schedule has not been made out as yet, pending a definite decision on the application of Duluth and Superior for membership.

A thorough inspection of the copper country rinks revealed some new features that it has been found desirable to incorporate in the Duluth structure and this will necessitate a considerable revision of the plans that were first submitted. On the completion of the plans the contract will be let and work will be started at once on the building.

The six-club league that is contemplated will include Duluth, Superior, Calumet, Houghton, Hancock and Marquette, the latter four being the present members of the copper country league. The organization will be conducted on an amateur basis and will have no affiliation this year with the big national hockey league, although another year probably will find several teams of the northwest in the proposed circuit.
